DEAN AND RIVETTE GIVEN LIFE TERMS

Aged Lincoln Pedestrian Dies After Being Hit By Car

TEXAS PAIR DROP PLANS FOR APPEAL

Two Men Convicted of Slaying Luceen Marshall Begin Sentences—Motions For New Trials Overruled — Attorney Asks Record Kept Open Pending Decision on Further Action.

Walter Dean, 28, and Sam Rivette, 36, were formally sentenced to life imprisonment by District Judge Frost Monday morning. The sentences of the two Texans were mandatory, juries having fixed the penalty in finding the pair guilty of first degree murder for the death of Luceen Marshall, 13-year-old Lincoln school boy.

Defense Attorney J. A. Hayward announced that present plans do not contemplate an appeal to the Supreme court, but he filed a motion expressing intention to appeal to keep the record clear in the event the defendants should change their minds about further court action.

Dean and Rivette had nothing to say before sentence was pronounced. Hayward waived argument on the motions for new trials which he had filed. The court then overruled the motions.

The Marshall boy was fatally wounded April 20 as he watched from Twenty-fourth and O streets a runing gun battle as police pursued the car containing Dean, Rivette, and a third companion, Aubrey Ray, who was killed by Officer Frank Robbins at the end of the chase near Prairie Home.

TRACE OF RAIN FAILS HALT HEAT

Mercury Reaches 103 Sunday; Rains In West Nebraska.

Continued oppressive heat was accompanied early Monday afternoon here by a trace of moisture. The shower was not sufficient to measure, the weather bureau reported.

The mercury reached 90 degrees at 12:30 o'clock p. m. While this was somewhat cooler than the 103-degree reading Sunday and the 104-degree mark reached Saturday, the high humidity afforded little relief. Little rain was reported over the state, except in portions along the western border Sunday.

At 8 o'clock Monday morning the temperature here was 85 degrees, with a 14-mile wind blowing.

The mercury did not go below 79 degrees during the night, that temperature being recorded at 5 and 6 o'clock Monday morning. The 103-degree high for Sunday occurred at 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The weather bureau reported Sunday high temperatures at other stations: North Platte, 96; Omaha, 96; Valentine, 92; and Sioux City, 92.

The Burlington reported "good rains" from Edgemont, S. D. to Crawford, Neb., from Guernsey, Wyo., to Morrill, Neb., and from Holyoke, Colo., to Venango, Neb.

Wind Causes Damage.

BIG SPRINGS, Neb., June 26—Limbs were snapped from trees and several small buildings were demolished in this vicinity last night by wind which accompanied an eighth of an inch of rain.

Crops Beginning To Wilt.

FALLS CITY, Neb., June 25—(AP)—With the mercury reaching 104 two days in succession and passing the 100 mark again today, Henry Wyatt, government weather observer, reported Richardson county's crops are beginning to wilt. The thermometer reached 100 at noon today after the 104 peak Saturday and Sunday. Wyatt said corn is badly in need of moisture.

DAKOTA MOTHER KILLS CHILDREN

DAWSON, N. D., June 25—(AP)—A farm mother who "did it for the children's good," shot and killed her two sons, critically wounded her two other children, then attempted to slay herself today.

Mrs. John Canfield, living half a mile north of here, told authorities she feared Jack, one of her sons, would become insane and "the rest might be the same."

Mrs. Canfield shot and killed Donald, 11, and George, 9, while they still were in bed. She severely wounded her daughter, Margaret, 12, and another son, Jack, 14.

Mrs. Canfield's sister-in-law returned to the house just as the woman was attempting to hang herself.

DENIES NORTH LOUP REJECTED

Washington Says That No Such Action Has Been Taken.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Officials at the public works administration insisted today there has been no action in regard to the proposed North Loup public power and irrigation district development in Nebraska. They said also no such change is proposed as was reported in Nebraska where a director of the district said the PWA had rejected the project but recommended an outright $600,000 or $700,000 gift for irrigation development alone.

The foregoing report refers to a letter which J. P. Barta of Ord wrote to Deputy Secretary of State H. D. Tolen at Lincoln in which the former a director of the North Loup district said the PWA had turned down the application for over a million dollars to develop that project but that it was understood a grant of 500 to 700 thousand dollars would be made from Washington for irrigation only.

The North Loup undertaking is among those which were investigated and approved by the Nebraska public works advisory board last fall and winter.

MISS TUFVERSON REPORTED ALIVE EARLY IN JUNE

Picture Identified As Woman Who Called At Boston Shop.

EVIDENCE REVEALS BIGAMIST MARRIAGE

Cabin Which Poderjay Used On Way to Europe To Be Searched.

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—New York police said they received information today indicating that Agnes Tufverson, missing New York attorney and subject of a sensational international mystery, was alive in Boston as late as June 10.

Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan received a telephone call from Boston police, in which he was informed that a picture of Miss Tufverson had been identified by an employe as that of a woman who called at a Boston cleaning shop on May 15 and again between June 1 and 10.

The inspector also made public a letter from Scotland Yard, dated June 15, giving all available data on the London activities of Capt. Ivan Poderjay, who is held in Vienna on a charge of suspicion of murder.

Evidence of Bigamy.

Poderjay married Miss Tufverson shortly before she disappeared last December 20. The letter from London contained a record of his marriage there, nine months earlier, to Marguerite Suzanne Ferrand.

A detective left for Hartford, Conn., today, to question an unnamed school teacher who was supposed to have corresponded with Poderjay.

One other local activity of the police will be a minute inspection of Cabin 86 on C deck of the White Star liner Olympic when it docks tomorrow night.

It was in Cabin 86 that Poderjay sailed last December 22, never leaving the cabin for meals or anything else, and keeping in it one of four trunks, which with six suitcases, made up his baggage. The cabin has a port hole directly over the water line.

A package from Vienna, enroute to New York police, is expected to contain evidence that the Ferrand woman, with whom Poderjay was living in Vienna, was wearing clothes which belonged to Miss Tufverson—which she bought here for her wedding trousseau.

It is also expected to contain, among many other things, letters which the Ferrand woman wrote to Poderjay, one of them, written while he was wooing Miss Tufverson, saying:

"Get money—no matter how—but somehow get lots of money to enable us to live as we desire."

NORMAL BOARD TO PICK FACULTY

College Presidents To Merely Recommend Appointments.

Selection of department heads and instructors on the faculties of the faculties ofthe four state teachers' colleges was virtually taken out of the hands of the presidents of those institutions by action of the state normal board Monday forenoon in the passage of a resolution requiring them to report the names of all qualified applicants to the board itself.

This resolution, offered by Member Frank J. Munday of Red Cloud, was adopted. It specifies that when a vacancy is to be filled in one of the normal schools the president shall notify the state superintendent's office, the state university teachers' college, all recognized teachers' employment agencies in the state, and any colleges that might be interested, so as to afford an opportunity for all interested persons to apply.

The normal school president is to recommend three of the applicants to the board, but it is not bound to choose any of these. It may elect anybody on the entire list.

It was voted during the forenoon to renew the application on behalf of the Chadron normal for $140,000 of federal public works funds for construction of another dormitory there. Similar action as to Kearney and Peru was reserved till a later

MUNY GAS FUND PLAN UNDECIDED

Council Again Delays Action On Proposed Diversion Vote.

Action on the proposed charter amendment to create an unemployment relief fund out of Municipal gas station surplus seemed no nearer before the regular meeting of the city council Monday afternoon. Councilmen indicated that the resolution calling an election to authorize the diversion would not be acted on until all five members are in agreement on the plan.

Mayor Fleming and Commissioners Bair, Oberlies and Doerr, it is understood, are willing to pass the resolution with the proviso that $15,000 be left in the muny gas account as a revolving fund, while Commissioner Harm, in charge of the station, insists on a $25,000 revolving fund.

The emergency amendment to the traffic ordinance requiring motorists who have lost or mutilated brake and light test certificates to obtain another at a licensed testing garage was to be passed by the city council Monday afternoon.

Restrict Beer Licenses.

The council during its informal meeting Monday morning expressed the intention to stop issuance of all on-sale beer licenses in residential districts.

City Attorney Max Kier was instructed to file complaints July 1 against all junk dealers who have not complied with the new junk dealers' ordinance.

Petitions for licenses to operate junk yards to be acted on Monday include those of the L. & L. Auto Supply Co., 2042 O street, Lavine Bros., inside 234-240 South Ninth street and outside 433 J street, Harry Marx, 2225-9 O street.

Petitions of the Lincoln Savings & Loan association to change the zoning of 920 Fontenelle street from residence to local business and a similar petition of Charles McWilliams for Cotner boulevard and X streets will be referred to the zoning board.

A complaint of residents at Twelfth and Pawnee streets against an alleged dump and woodyard there will be taken up. A petition by F. A. Good for a hearing on the personal assessment value of the Lincoln Traction company will also come up. Authorization for the purchase by Commissioner Harm in July of 10 cars of gasoline, 10 barrels of oil and two cars of coal for the muny gas and coal department was to be given.

COLUMBUS, Kas., June 25—(AP)—Three prisoners escaped early today from the Cherokee county jail by sawing their way through three sets of bars installed by the county as "saw-proof." The three were Fred Pearis, 43, charged with burglary, Martin Reeter, 26, highway robbery, and Berry Thodes, 22, breaking into a box car.

Frank Fritz, farmer south of Milford, threshed a 4-acre plot of wheat Friday, and got a 42 bushel per acre yield. The strip of land is on the banks of the Blue river. Corn in the vicinity is looking exceptionally well, according to Lincoln men who fished near there Sunday.

ROOSEVELT AND FARLEY DISCUSS APPOINTMENTS

Stock Exchange And Communications Commissions to Be Named.

PRESIDENT WILL HAVE BUSY WEEK

Chief Executive Preparing to Depart Saturday For Hawaii.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 25—(AP)—President Roosevelt conferred here today with Postmaster General Farley as he arranged to select the new stock exchange and communications commissions and fill other government vacancies before departing on Saturday for Hawaii.

Postmaster General Farley, who is also national and state democratic chairman, reached the home here of President Roosevelt in time for lunch. He found Mr. Roosevelt engrossed in a stack of government business, including legislation just passed by congress. The president has set aside the week for clearing up all pending affairs.

The Farley visit offered opportunity also for discussion of national and state political affairs. Governor Lehman was at Mr. Roosevelt's dinner table yesterday with Edward J. Flynn, Bronx leader. Before going to the conference room, Farley said he assumed his call would deal principally with the new federal officers about to be chosen. He carried a bundle of names of those seeking preference.

Farley will return to Washington tonight with President Roosevelt on his special train which arrives in the capital early in the morning.

Mr. Roosevelt allocated the first of the drouth relief funds last night in an executive order which specified $56,250,000 for direct aid to the states in the stricken area.

The remainder of the first distribution of federal relief for the drouth area included $43,750,000 for purchase of seed, food and livestock; $25,000,000 for seed and feed loans; $12,500,000 for purchase of lands in the drouth regions; and 12,500,000 for establishment of civilian conservation camps in the stricken region.

So far as politicas are concerned, the president stated on this trip that party affiliations did not count in the federal campaign for better days. He is expected by his aides to give unstinted support to those aiding in the administration program, regardless of party.

Downfall Of Hitler Rule Is Predicted

Military Dictatorship To Succeed Nazi Regime, Steel Thinks.

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—The New York Post, in the first of three copyrighter articles by Johannes Steel, says today that Adolph Hitler's rule of Germany has come to an end and that the nazi dictatorship will be succeeded by a military dictatorship.

Steel predicts these seven steps in Germany:

"1. Tool of fodces stronger than himself. Hitler will be stripped of power, possibly within two weeks.

"2. Hjalmar Schacht, real ruler of Germany for the past six months, will remain dictator of economic and commercial policies.

"3. The aged Von Hindenburg will retire.

"4. The former crown prince, or one o fthe kaiser's grandsons, or Hitler himself, will be made regent or president.

"5. Franz Von Papen or Hermann Wilhelm Goering will become chancellor.

"6. If Hitler is made president, executive power will be vested in the chancellor; or is a Hohenzollern becomes regent executive power will be theoretically his.

"7. Fritz Thyssen, steel and power baron, will hold his grip as czar of the Ruhr and Rhine basins."

Steel (the name is a nom de plume) was for several years economic adviser abroad for the German ministry of economics.

Revolving Road Fund Gets Another $500,000

Another draft for $500,000 for the federal government's emergency revolving highway fund advanced to the state of Nebraska has been received by State Engineer Cochran from the public roads bureau at Washington and turned over to State Treasurer Hall. This makes $2,000,000 in all thus remitted during the past six or eight months to expedite payment of contractors and enable them to meet the payrolls of their men for work done on federal projects in Nebraska.

The money comes out of this state's regular allotment but is sent ahead of time so that it can be and out before claims are put through the regular course which would involve several weeks' delay.

Roosevelt Concerned Over Staggering Toll Of Highway Accidents

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—President Roosevelt said in a letter read today at the convention of the American Automobile association that he was "deeply concerned over the staggering toll of deaths, injuries and heavy property damage caused by highway accidents."

"We cannot longer afford to temporize with this problem," said the letter.

"Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel.

"Safer conditions for travel undoubtedly would contribute to a greater use of the highways, now that shorter working hours and more leisure time is assured by the national recovery program.

"It is to such organizations as the American Automobile association that we look for leadership in the continuing effort to work out a solution of the accident problem. You are to be congratulated on what you have accomplished in the past and on the broad-gauged program you are formulating for the future.

"I extend to you and your associates my cordial good wishes for a successful convention."

REDISTRICTING IS HELD INVALID BY HIGH COURT

Failure To Revise All Districts In State Nullifies Law.

The Nebraska Supreme court Monday held the 1933 redistricting act unconstitutional and affirmed the Lancaster county District court's judgment enjoining County Clerk J. B. Morgan from enforcing the statute in this county. Although the suit involved only Lancaster county directly, the court's decision holding the act unconstitutional will affect Douglas county as well, which was partially redistricted by terms of the statute.

The statute was declared unconstitutional and invalid because it redistricted Lancaster and Douglas counties only, inequalities in population and representation existing in other counties receiving no consideration. To allow the act to stand, the court said, would deprive the rest of the state of a reapportionment for another ten years and the correction of "gross inequalities for a like period."

Not Concerned With Motives.

Declaring that it was not concerned with motives which may have actuated passage of the act, the court said that "the record discloses that in the enactment of H. R. 162 the legislature made no attempt to re-subdivide and re-apportion the whole state into senatorial and representative districts, that no changes were made or attempted to be made in any counties of the state except Douglas and Lancaster, that the whole state was not apportioned according to population as required by Article III, Sec. 5 of the constitution, that such apportionment was not done for the correction of the apparent gross inequalities in the respective senatorial and representative districts of the whole state and thereby violated the constitution."

The suit was instituted in the name of Logan A. Rogers, republican attorneys attacking the law on the ground that it was gerrymandering. In the case of Lancaster county, the act split the county directly in half from north to south into two senatorial districts. The democratic attorneys defending the act claimed it corrected inequalities and gerrymandering resulting from previous apportionment by a republican legislature.

RAIL COMMISSION IS RESTRAINED

Power Company Granted Temporary Order By Judge Munger.

The state railway commission and Attorney General Paul F. Good were temporarily restrained by Federal Judge T. C. Munger Monday from enforcing a recent commission order for the reduction of minimum rural power rates against the Southern Nebraska Power Co.

The power company was ordered to put up a $3,000 bond to insure reparations to consumers in event the eventual adjudication of the case determines that the commission's order may stand.

Judge Munger ordered the company to file a showing in support of its petition for an interlocutory injunction by August 1. The state officials are given until September 1 to file and reply and the company's counter-showing must be on file not less than fifteen days later.

After these preliminaries, Judge Munger said a date will be set for a hearing before a court of three federal judges.

The railway commission ordered the rate reduction on the petition of rural consumers near Glide Rock who claimed that the company had sought to evade the 1933 statute prohibiting service charges in rural areas by increasing their minimum rates.

Albert F. Scheffert, 70, 119 South Ninth street, died in St. Elizabeth's hospital at 11:40 o'clock Sunday evening from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile. The car, driven by Soloman Dell, 18, 1025 South Eighth street, struck Mr. Scheffert at 10:45 p. m., on Ninth street between O and N streets, according to police.

No inquest will be held, the county attorney's office announced.

Suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull, a fractured right arm, penetrating wound near the right ear, and other wounds over the scalp, right ear and hand, the man died just 50 minutes after he was admitted to the hospital. He was attended by Dr. Czar Johnson, Dr. W. W. Carveth, and Dr. L. D. James, interne.

Did Not See Victim.

Dell, driver of the automobile which hit Scheffert, said that he had not seen the elderly man at all until it was too late, officers reported. Dell said that he was driving slowly behind a large truck. Mr. Scheffert was walking west across the street to his rooming house when the Dell automobile, coming from the north, struck him just west of the center of the street.

A large cataract over Scheffert's right eye, which impaired his sight, may have been a contributing factor.

As Rogers Sees It

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 25 — Lots of news about that South American war. I was down there almost two years ago and they were going strong then.

Now how can they fight that long without getting all their war material from other nations? That's why there will always be war, you got every nation that's not in it boosting for it, for everybody makes money out of a war but the nations fighting.

We used to think war couldn't last long because one or both sides had no money. Why there is no industry under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can war. This war down there has been on credit since 24 hours after it started.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

BOLLEN DECIDES RUN FOR SENATE

Urges Self As 'Unity' Candidate For State Demos.

Railway Commissioner Floyd L Bollen in a statement addressed to the rank and file of Nebraska democrats Monday announced his candidacy for the democratic senatorial nomination in the August primaries

Bollen completed his filing in the secretary of state's office Monday morning

He appealed for support on a three-plank platform A 'new deal" for Nebraska democrats by smashing both factional machines, support of the 'new deal" at Washington guaranteed by the nomination of a democrat who has been regular as a progressive, nad the election of a democratic United States senator insured by the nomination of a democrat who can be elected

The Friend man, who claims considerable pressure has been brought to keep him out of the race, declared that the nomination of either Governor Bryan or Congressman Burke, the latter branded as the Mullen candidate, "means the election of a republican U S senator" because of factional strife Bollen advances his own candidacy as a means of unifying the democratic party in the state

His statement in part said

"Heretofore the two factions in the party have worked in harmony whenever Governor Bryan and National Committeeman Mullen were able to agree who should be governor and who should be national committeeman They are now unable to agree who should be United States senator Governor Bryan has agreed upon himself as the candidate of the Bryan faction Committeeman Mullen in the exercise of good political judgment has agreed upon Congressman Burke to 'run the races for the Mullen faction It is now a fight to the finish and the nomination of either means election of a republican U S senator

"The democrats should nominate a candidate who can be elected in November Congressman Burke may be more brilliant and Governor Bryan may be more versatile but in 1932 I had a better vote-getting record than they Running for railway commissioner I carried the state by 82 876 plurality Running for governor Bryan carried the state by 35 229 plurality I carried the second congressional district by 20 168 plurality Running for congress Burke carried the district by 7 519 plurality

STRIFE AT LOUP CITY CONTINUES

LOUP CITY, Neb. June 25—(AP)—A parade was planned to be held here late this afternoon by sympathizers for the group of 'agitators' who were charged with inciting to riot and unlawful assembly after a hand to hand battle here June 14 Six of the nine charged in the complaints are scheduled to go to trial here tomorrow

Round of Valley county the resignation of Deputy State Sheriff Otto Dudschus and removal of Postmaster C. F Beushausen were passed by a group of sympathizers at a picnic near here yesterday

About 150 persons were at the picnic but local residents said they did not know how many were active in the movement and how many were there just for curiosity

WHERRY FAVORS 'FARMERS CODE'

Pawnee City Republican Completes Filing U. S. Senator.

In a public statement issued Monday to accompany his formal filing for United States senator in the republican primary, Kenneth S Wherry of Pawnee City declares himself in favor of a "farmers code," as advocated by the farm holiday association under which minimum prices for agricultural commodities would be fixed

Another policy which Wherry indorses is mutual insurance of bank deposits He would re-enact the old bank guaranty law of Nebraska as a national system and make it permanent He also recommends "taking unnecessary red tape restrictions off the country banker as a means of enabling farm borrowers to obtain money on easier terms

Wherry says he is opposed to elements in the republican party which have been using it for their own selfish ends His candidacy he asserts, is for the sole purpose of advancing the agricultural interests of Nebraska and placing that industry on a par with others

Since manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, transportation interests, and many other lines have codes to protect them from unfair competition Wherry thinks it is only fair that farmers should be given the same protection to guarantee them a fair profit on what they produce date as the Chadron request has priority over the other two

President U S Conn of the Wayne Normal suggested putting into effect a rule that no more than four students of that institution should be permitted to room at the same private dwelling The board, however took no action on this proposal Conn thought the students would do better work by limiting the number domiciled at any home

Names of students eligible for graduation at the close of the summer terms were reported to the board Several recent faculty additions leaves of absence, etc, were also certified

Edgar L Ferneau of Auburn, newly elected president of the board occupied the chair in place of Fred S Knapp, Omaha who served in that capacity last year All members were present except State Supt C W Taylor, who is on his vacation in Minnesota He was represented by his deputy, H L Cushing

Secretary Fred W Anderson of the board, whose home is at Cozad, will continue as a member and secretary, regardless of his candidacy for congress in the democratic primary Chairman Ferneau who is a republican congressional candidate in the first district will also remain on the board Another member, J F Rohn of Fremont, has not decided definitely whether he will file for governor in the democratic primary

Frank Munday of Red Cloud is staying on the board notwithstanding his appointment as district judge a year ago His office is nonpolitical

On the motion of E D Crites, Chadron member the board adopted a memorial asking state highway authorities to include in the bituminous mat surfacing project on route No 1, which has been relocated to run a mile west of the city of Chadron instead of through the city, a connecting road between the normal school campus and new highway

The connection, a mile and a half in length, was a part of the old highway, which ran to the main entrance of the campus and then turned west The new route is on a straight north and south line passing Chadron outside the city limits

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Although he is still unable to identify the stranger who, with a policeman, was killed in Pierre Dufresne's house, he at least has some "leads." One is that at the time Ellen Becker, a servant, left the Dufresnes' employ Mr. and Mrs. Dufresne had a quarrel. Another is that there was something strange about Ellen's leaving, and a third is that Donaghy, the chauffeur, has recently been seen with a large amount of money in his pocket.

Chapter 41.
PUZZLING AMBUSH.

Donaghy suddenly recaptured his jaunty manner "Certainly I've got a big roll of bills, a regular man's size stake.

"What of it? There wasn't any money missing was there? I didn't win it on the horses. That's just a yarn I pitched to nosey John, to makes his eyes pop. This is money I've saved up from my wages and I'm not trusting it to any bank. Now, if you want to count it, or write down the numbers, or look for fingerprints on it, it's all right with me."

Harper waved aside the mockingly offered wallet. "So you carry your hard-earned savings around with you, yet you borrow small sums of money from your fellow servants to tide you over to the next payday? I must say I like the horse story better, Donaghy!"

This time the chauffer's temper blew up. "I don't give a damn what you like or don't like," he sputtered. "It's my business. If you think you've got anything on me, go ahead and make the pinch You can't bluff me and you're not going to hang anything on me, either, by hanging around the kitchen and wheedling gossip out of the help.

"Put the screws to the servants make 'em jump through hoops when you crack the whip Ask anything, we've got to answer But I haven't heard you making any noises like that upstairs. Try badgering them and see what you get!"

Donaghy went on, unheeding "There are lots of things you don't know about, Mr. Sergeant of Detectives, for all your snooping. I'll give you a couple of hot tips and dare you to do something about it.

"You can't question Mrs Dufesne because her face is all wrapped up in bandages. Question her heli, you can't even get into the room. Well, she can talk, because I heard her talking to the doctor and talking plenty

"Here's another! Mr. Dufresne hasn't been near her since she came back to this house last night. Is he staying out, or is he being kept out? If you can spare a little time from the butler, the chauffeur, and the cook you might look into a few things like that, going on right under your nose."

Harper got down from the table. "Donaghy, I'm running this case in my own way. Right now we're discussing your part and I'm going to tell you what I think, in plain words It's for your own good

"I am convinced you hold the key evidence in this case, because you know who that dead man was and why he came here. If you have accepted a bribe for your silence, or levied blackmail on the strength of that knowledge, I warn you that you're playing with dynamite

"Both those murders were treacherous, cold-blooded affairs. There may have been a strong reason behind the first killing but Officer Hamill was murdered for one reason, and only one—he knew the killer's identity. Any one who will kill, and kill again to cover the first crime, can keep right on killing so long as there is danger of discovery."

The dark blue limousine with the blue and gold seal of the city blazoned on the door slipped swiftly past the snow banks that lined the country road.

Harper and Lafferty had gone over the scene of Dufresne's ambush of the day before with extreme care and with the help of Officer Watson, to whom Dufresne had first reported the affair. And they had found exactly nothing whatever.

No cars had been seen, no trains had passed that could have served the hidden gunman, and all traces of his hiding place had been hidden, if they existed at all, by the snow.

"It looks as if we're up against an invisible man," Lafferty remarked.

"Make it plural," returned Harper with a sharp look "The sniper vanishes in a few minutes in the midst of a bare, flat country. But he must have been back in the city almost as soon as Dufresne, who drove like mad.

"And then a still smarter man murdered the sniper, and escaped from Dufresne's house without leaving a track in the snow. Either it's magic, or someone's been dragging red herrings across the snow"

"You mean some of our clues have been planted?"

"Exactly By the way you haven't told me how you made out at Mrs Morlock's"

"Well, Mrs. Dufresne's alibi is just as strong as her unsupported word Here is the situation Steve Dufresne called up his wife about 4 30 and told her about the ambush He said he was safe was staying in the Austerlitz for the night and that there was a police guard

"She seemed greatly upset by the news complained of a nervous headache begged off attendance at Mrs Morlock's dinner party and immediately retired to her room.

About five o'clock the maid left a tray outside her door When she passed a [illegible] had been taken in. The point is that no one actually saw Mrs Dufresne from five o'clock until the maid went up to announce that Doyle was asking to see her

Dinner was [illegible] and while they were [illegible] one of the chauffeurs [illegible] the alarm about the fire in the garage. The telephone wires were [illegible] at the back of the garage and the phones went dead [illegible] after they [illegible] the Fire Department [illegible] the whole house [illegible]

[illegible]

"[illegible] Harper [illegible] thought that when a murder was planned the murderer [illegible] armed with the best [illegible] and the worst. It's almost a law of criminal nature. Now what [illegible]"

Lafferty grinned. "Sherlock Holmes is [illegible]"

swered. "You're quite right, Steve Dufresne and Andrews And what portions of our evidence have been most troublesome to place?"

"Personally," Lafferty said, "I could get along better if I knew nothing of the case that dated prior to sundown yesterday. That fellow buying the disguise months ago the crank letters the ambush, those damned things make everything dizzier"

"Right again Jack And why? Because those three events should be links in a sequence the logical outcome of which would have been Dufresne's death That's why I've felt so uneasy about the letters—something tells me they were not written by our dead man"

Lafferty nodded "I see The letters furnished Dufresne with his alibi. If the letter are 'phoney, then the alibi—I get your drift Where's our next stop, the Austerlitz?"

"Not yet First we have to pay a little social call on the mysterious housemaid Ellen Becker" Harper took a slip of paper from his vest pocket "Ellen lives at 1221 West Magnolia street. I don't think we're expected and I doubt if we'll be welcome.

"Harris found her in a little over an hour," he told Lafferty "That youngster will make his mark He's got a nose for the scent as sharp as a beagle's"

"Do you expect her to cut and run?"

"If she knows something that's very likely, I'll be interested to see her action when she finds out who we are"

The police car threaded its way through the city lanes until the driver pulled up at the opening of a narrow street. "Here you are, Sergeant" he announced The detectives got out and Harris emerged at once from a tobacco shop on the corner and joined them

"Any sign of activity?" Harper asked.

"I think so" Harris reported. "Miss Becker has been called to the 'phone in that store twice. There's a booth, so I couldn't hear what she said, but she looked excited."

"Good enough. Wait here for us." Harper directed, and he and Lafferty turned into the narrow street, solidly lined with neat, but small two-story houses They mounted the low steps at 1221 and pulled the old-fashioned bell

They had a wait before the door opened about a foot and a middle-aged woman with iron-gray hair looked out at them suspiciously.

Harper greeted her politely. "We would like to see Miss Elen Becker"

"Shes not at home, the woman answered brusquely.

The mysterious Eellen Becker is put on the "spot" tomorrow.

Minerva's Mail

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

Her Husband's Success.

"I want my daughter to prepare to be a good wife to a good man." More and more you hear mothers of today make this statement Educators, likewise, report that the modern college girl betrays a greater or at least a franker interest in matrimony today than she did a few years ago and puts her hopes for marriage and children above all other ambitions that she may possess

The woman who prefers to arrive at success through her husband's efforts and who would rather be the wife of a big man than to see her own name in headlines seeks through her education to prepare herself to be a true helpmate to some able and ambitious man, and moreover to establish herself in such circles as will give her an opportunity to meet men of the right type under favorable conditions

Consciously or unconsciously she seeks as her mate the ablest man she can find. Having married good material she does not permit it to be wasted Her husband must have every possible opportunity to realize on his talents.

The modern girl seeks to equip herself to help him in whatever way presents itself. No matter what sacrifices are entailed, she never stands in his way. She craves success for him, not that she may stand in the limelight and enjoy the publicity but in order that his and her united dreams may come true If necessary, she follows him to the ends of the earth If she suffers fears and loneliness, she conceals them She adopts herself to all emergencies and feels that wifehood and motherhood constitute her chosen job and provide their own compensation

This is the ideal and ambition of the average modern gorl I for one, hope it will be the womanhood type of the future.

Steer The Boat.

Dear Minerva: May I present to you my mother-in-law problem My husband was much of the spoiled boy in his youth However, he recovered from this to a certain extent When we were first married, sixteen years ago, I waited on him "hand and foot" He was always irregular in his hours, but I babied him and kept food warm until all hours and was always ready to make him comfortable and pet him.

Then the children came, four of them. I became so busy with them that the nerve wracking business of catering to a spoiled man was too much for me, so I ceased the practice of pampering him. He rose to the situation like a man, too, and was even getting so he would help me with my heavy chores, since we can no longer afford a maid. Then his mother stepped in.

She has an independent income and there is no need for her to live with any of her children. But she came to visit us eight months ago and has apparently moved in. She started in at once pitying "her poor boy" and has proceeded inch by inch to put herself in the position of comforter and caretaker of a greatly misused husband. By always being on hand with warm meals for him scaring the children until they don't dare make normal childish noise about the house when daddy is home, she has gradually made it appear that I am a selfish woman and a poor manager and altogether an ogre My husband has reverted to being a little boy, spoiled and pampered and has nothing for us but grumbling because we require so much money

Now what can I do? I adore my husband and want him The children did adore him, though they are becoming afraid of him, and they need him But we are headed straight for the rocks this way. Please advise me —MYRNA

A —Don't let matters drift on the rocks Steer the boat, for it is your own home craft Be definite and firm and make demands for your rights now before it is too late Your rights include the privilege of having your own home to yourself and being free to terminate a visit from even so important a guest as husband's mother The situation is unfair to you If your husband cannot see it let him go elsewhere to live with his mother He will soon tire of it.

Answered Briefly.

E C: I think the quiet home wedding would be in better taste considering the serious illness of your grandmother Even though she had expressed the desire for you to be married in the church, such a ceremony would be out of place under present circumstances. I'm sure you would rather change your wedding plans than to postpone the ceremony, and your reason is sufficiently grave to be readily understood by those who have already been invited to officiate at your marriage.

N M: I do indeed think that a house party of young people, ages seventeen to twenty, should be chaperoned by older and married couples

RECENTLY you read about important reductions in Plymouth prices. This week Plymouth again makes news.

It's the introduction of THE SPECIAL SIX ... and it changes the whole picture in the low-price field.

When Plymouth announces a new model, thousands of people go to see it. We urge that you take a few minutes of your time and join them.

It will pay you to do this for two reasons. One of them is the car itself ... and the other its price.

Consider that statement. Think what it means.

It means that without spending an extra penny, you can own this Special Six with Hydraulic Brakes ... instead of a car with ordinary brakes.

It means that your family can ride surrounded and protected by a BODY OF SAFETY-STEEL ... instead of the ordinary composite kind.

It means that you can have the added comfort of Individual Wheel Springing and patented Floating Power engine mountings. You get all four major features without paying a penalty.

And finally it means real pride of ownership.

CLOSEUP OF A PIONEER.

NEAR FALLS CITY, on the banks of Walnut creek, Mrs. Charles F. Kreker ninety-six years of age, lives on the same farm which she and her husband purchased seventy years ago, and on which she has lived for sixty-nine years. She is a Nebraska pioneer.

It was near the close of the Civil war in 1864, that Mr. Kreker, a Union soldier, bought the place. When he was mustered out of service, the next year, he brought his bride to their new home. It was a train journey to St. Joe, and a wagon trek from there on into Nebraska, requiring two full days. Temporarily, the young couple boarded with one of the few settlers, who boasted of the only log cabin between Hart and Falls City. The latter community had a dozen buildings. Immediately, Mr. Kreker started construction of his own cabin, but his unfamiliarity with the region was reflected in the fact it was located too close to the creek, and high water forced him to move it back to more elevated ground.

Then Mrs. Kreker tells her story:

"Drouths, freezes, and grasshoppers followed. The first year our garden froze. I was discouraged and wanted to go back, but Charles said he had come to stay. He paid $5 an acre for the forty on which the house stands, and a dollar an acre for the rest—200 acres in all. What a time we had paying for it. We owed a balance of $600 and it took thirteen years to pay for it, because before the obligation was discharged, interest and principal aggregated $1,300. One of our neighbors sent us a barrel of flour. Flour cost $9 a barrel. And what fine bread it made! After it was gone, we used shorts. Coffee was 50 cents a pound, so we made our coffee from rye. Our tea we steeped from raspberry leaves."

THAT is typical of the beginning of a fine state, in which wealth today is computed in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

It is a true story of the pioneer.

In retrospection of that glamorous period of settlement, we are apt to overlook the human side of its struggle. There is the reflection that people are unchanging. They react to discouragement and disaster today in exactly the same fashion they did at the beginning of Nebraska settlement. Mrs. Kreker says she wanted to go back. Her thoughts were centered upon her old Ohio home, where it seemed to her safety and security could be had. Here she was, a girl, in a strange country, of great spaces, unsettled and unoccupied, terribly lonely, missing friends and neighbors; a country filled with biting cold, intense heat, whimsical changes in climate, which smiled one minute and snarled the next, and it was not any wonder that she wanted to go back to the peaceful surroundings she had known.

And in the chronicles of the pioneers, her story could be duplicated thousands of times. There was a superb courage and a supreme fortitude shown in the burdens and hardships accepted and overcome. But for the sake of accurary, for the purpose of revealing the pioneer in the true light, so that he may be understood better and his accomplishments all the more deeply appreciated, it should be recognized that the longing to return to the regions from which he came at times amounted to a positive ache. It takes nothing from pioneer glory. It adds to pioneer luster. It reveals men and women, suffering much and in the face of those experiences, reacting to them as normal human beings always have under similar conditions. In this manner, pioneering becomes all the more an intense drama of human qualities. It was not made up of a cast of supermen, or superwomen. It was made up of people who were the same as their forebears and their predecessors.

DEFINITELY, Nebraska emerged from a pioneer period. Definitely, she came into her birthright as a state providing homes for more than a million and a quarter people, homes equipped with the modern conveniences of the age. It is a remarkable story of settlement and of industry. We said in the beginning that the wealth represented within the boundaries of Nebraska today is counted in the hundreds of millions. Here in the life of this woman, nearing now the century mark, a Nebraskan for sixty-nine years, may be seen its beginning. She was a spectator throughout all those years. She and her husband settled on the fringe of what was then civilization, and what now is one of the earliest and the oldest settled part of Nebraska.

All that exists here came from the soil, from man's work in the fields, from the blessings of sunshine and the benediction of rain. Throughout the seventy years, there was no magic wand to fill the pockets of Nebraska people with gold, almost overnight, as the saying goes. It was built by labor under a blazing sun, in spite of drouth, freezes, and grasshoppers. It was accumulated slowly, tediously, through careful habits of frugality. It gave more of itself than it retained, for in the swing of the years, it enriched the nation with great contributions of food for those here in America and for millions of hungry mouths at remote distances. It bred an independent spirit, a wholesomeness in habits, a fearlessness in action. That is the story of Nebraska as it rose from the shadowy mists of pioneering and became the home of a legion.

Now our problem is to carry on. The soil itself no longer is so fertile and so productive as when the prairies awakened to the songs of birds singing in the wild grasses. We must readjust our farm program to the physical changes inevitably resulting from constant cropping of the soil. We must conserve water, safeguard the river valleys through a planned program, and reshape our farm activities to preserve the labors of the pioneers. Otherwise, their contributions will become increasingly less valuable.

A PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR.

TIME robbed Ed Howe, the Kansas sage, of some of his fire. Back in the days of lean harvests, when grasshoppers and drouth were getting in their work, no mightier voice was raised than Howe's, pleading for a new deal for the agricultural classes. It might have been suspected that the self same Howe would have been classified as radical. But that was a long time ago. It now appears that elements of the New Deal, at least, arouse Mr. Howe's fears, and more frequently, he may be found espousing the traditional, conservative virtues of thrift and industry.

But regardless of that, Kansas loved her distinguished son, year in and year out, in the spring time when his blood was hot and his pen scorching, and in the mellow autumn, when he was more the philosopher and less the crusader.

So the state of Kansas is going to recognize Ed Howe on June 30, and the plans have been completed for a big dinner at the state capital, which it is anticipated will be attended by hundreds, embracing those who amount to a great deal and those who do not. It is a gracious and generous recognition, which is well deserved. The state of Kansas never has given honor to its literary heroes and it makes up for its belated action by selecting the one most outstanding.

Ed Howe is more than a Kansas institution. He is representative of the finest type of American citizenship and his life has been filled with years of service to his country. He represents clear thinking and wholesome ideals, the courage of conviction blended with a kindly and neighborly tolerance.

THE HOUSING TEST.

"HIGH costs in an industry, however justified they may seem to be, become a matter of primary concern if they retard its operation so that profitable returns are difficult or impossible," the Kansas City Star comments. "It is simply enlightened interest, therefor that prompts the announcement from a spokesman of the construction industry that reductions of 10 to 15 per cent in the prices of materials are in prospect as a starter for the recently enacted house renovizing and building program."

It is recognized the tremendous prospective market which will be opened by a housing program exceeds any other. Frequently in the years preceding 1929, the aggregate outlay for homes was more than 3 billion dollars annually. Since 1930, residential building construction has been approximately 300 millions annually. Thus, it has been but 10 per cent of the normal.

And this virtual suspension for a five year period has changed the situation greatly. At the close of the war, there was an acute housing shortage. Much of the building which followed in the '20s went to make up that shortage. Now, another five-year cessation has produced an actual shortage in many localities, and in the cases of the great majority of homes, has created a real need for renovation. If it gets underway, it will do more to cure unemployment, to keep factories busy, and to stimulate business generally than any step which could be taken. The costs have stood in the way of preventing a thawing out of the building trades. If the problem of costs can be met, the major difficulty is overcome.

WHEN BERNARD BARUCH RETIRES.

FEW men enter upon their responsibilities without the secret belief that the day will come when they can retire and do what they please, and few ever realize their hopes.

Bernard Baruch is different.

He is going to retire from Wall street, where he built a great fortune and an even greater reputation for himself. He is going to get out to be free to do some writing—his own personal memoirs, probably supplemented with comment on current topics. As an index of his methodical mind, it is indicated Baruch already has selected the particular subjects on which he intends to write. They will be of interest, and are:

1. The Autobiography of an American Boy.
2. The Way That Lays Ahead For the Youth of America.
3. Man's Conquest of Nature.

It's Baruch's own story which will furnish the subject for the first book. The material could not be excelled. He saw from the inside the battles between the financial giants of Wall street, and then as the confidential adviser of Woodrow Wilson, had a ringside seat throughout one of the most interesting periods of American history. Perhaps his readers would not be so much interested in the experiences which were his as in the reflections that possibly his time marked the close of a peculiarly American era. Under his plan, he has reserved that for a second book.

STRAIGHT DOPE ON SENATORS.

PEOPLE who try to follow the course of government events at Washington will be grateful to the newspaper correspondents of the capitol for giving them an intimate sizeup of a number of the leading personalities in congress. The results of a questionnaire circulated among the newsmen, giving their collective opinion of the capabilities and distinctive attributes of these leaders may be taken as a pretty accurate appraisal by those in the best position to judge them.

It comes as no surprise, of course, to learn that the press gang at Washington puts Huey Long close to the bottom of the list so far as solid qualities of statesmanship go. But some folks wouldn't have known except for the reporters' poll that Huey is the best dresser in the upper house of congress. At that, he has to take second place to Jim Ham Lewis of Illinois in the matter of fancy raimnent. The scribblers voted 56 to 21 in favor of the latter as possessing the most variegated wardrobe.

The ablest senator on the democratic side, as voted by the press gallery, is Glass of Virginia, with Wagner of New York second and Robinson of Arkansas third. Reed of Pennsylvania gets 30 votes as the ablest republican, and Norris of Nebraska is runner-up with 16. McNary of Oregon and Borah of Idaho are tied for third place with 10 apiece. Borah, however, is pronounced the ablest orator in the senate, either democratic or republican. He was given 65 votes out of 84 correspondents who answered the questionnaire.

Among senators having a good chance to become president at some future time, 22 press writers picked Vandenberg of Michigan, republican. LaFollette of Wisconsin ran second with 15 votes and Reed of Pennsylvania third with 6. Democratic senators figured inconspicuously in this part of the poll, since President Roosevelt's undisputed right to renomination in 1936 leaves them out of the presidential picture at this time. However, 39 correspondents thought Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the majority leader, will ultimately land on the supreme bench, and 7 others forecast the same distinction for Wagner. Wagner was also accorded the honor of being pronounced the "most popular senator."

The other Robinson, republican of Indiana, drew a Bronx cheer from the news mongers in being designated by 42 votes as the senator who would be "least missed" if his constituents should retire him. Others in this classification were Trammell, Florida, 11 votes and Long, Louisiana, 4. While Huey doesn't stack up very high in the matter of personal influence, everybody concedes that he cuts quite a figure in his way and that his absence from official life would make quite a difference.

Nebraska gets first place for having the most liberal-minded spokesman in the senate—Norris, of course—who received 36¼ votes against 15 for Borah and 10¼ for LaFollette. All these are listed as republicans, though LaFollette has lately espoused a new "progressive" party in his home state.

To emphasize the wide divergence of political views in the g. o. p., the six ranking as most conservative are also members of that party. Fess of Ohio is at the top, with 23 votes, and Keyn of New Jersey comes next with 12.

It would appear from this part of the press poll that the democratic party as now constituted in congress represents the moderate opinion of the country, being neither extremely radical nor reactionary.

QUESTION.

Sayre, Pa.

What would you select as the best feature of our modern civilization?

ANSWER.

If there is one trait which distinguishes it more than any other it is the realization that no nation lives solely to itself. In this respect the people who once walked in darkness have seen a great light. Within the memory of those who are older the countries of farther Asia were practically gated and barred against those of the West. Today the news of Japan, China, Korea, Burma and India is in all men's ears.

For this reason no state concerned only with its own affairs is possible, and no religion concerned with nothing more than the salvation of the individual can win the interest of mankind at large. This is the age of a world-wide reconstruction in which the good and evil elements are struggling for supremacy. Peace against war, service against selfishness, sectarianism against comprehensive religious co-operation are arrayed one against the other in every direction.

One of the most eloquent tributes to national isolation I have read for many a day was recently paid by Senator Borah. So far, so good! But nationalism requires instrumentation, indeed demands it, in the form of a wise and generous internationalism. Commerce, economics, navigation, no less than politics and religion, are bursting their old channels and carving new ones which no fond worship of the past can prevent.

The individualistic viewpoint has already merged into the social viewpoint and the national viewpoint is merging into the international viewpoint. This does not mean they will be severed or obliterated, but rather that they will be united as roots and branches are one in a healthy, growing tree. It should no longer be possible to accuse insulated nationalism as the late Viscount Morley did of the bloodiest wars of history. Those who plead for the oneness of all civilized nations against competitive armaments, and for joint action in behalf of justice and goodwill, are endeavoring to purge nationalism's black record, and to make it one of which every patriot can be proud.

QUESTION.

Lansing, Mich.

Why is it that meditation is so uncongenial to people?

ANSWER.

Perhaps those who do not practice it have lost the faculty for doing so. Disuse often brings on atrophy. Having eyes, we do not see; ears, we do not hear. The thinking capacity of a crowd can generally be more accurately measured by its silence rather than by its plaudits. Trained speakers understand that there is no greater compliment for their words than quiet receptivesess. John Bright left his audiences too spellbound to cheer. They put into action based on his advice what they left out of wild acclaim.

Another reason is that the wisdom of passiveness is strongly resented. Everything and everybody must be raring to go. Yet

"Think we amid all this mighty sum
Of things for ever speaking,
That nothing of itself will come,
But we must still be seeking."

Yes, vociferates the "go-getter" who sometimes comes back with other people's property. Anything which slows down our feverish activity is too often ridiculed. To wait on slow time's sure reversals of folly and haste is the hardest task of all. So long as we are going somewhere the goal becomes a secondary consideration.

Few mental states are more unprofitable than that in which the reins of thought fall from nerveless hands at the biddance of emotionalism and fancy carries us whither it will. Besides, hard and constant thinking requires brain sweat, whereas pleasant romancing is as easy as it is futile. Yet creative toil depends on prolonged meditation, while the things done in a hurry too often have to be repented at leisure. Neither men nor nations can be hypnotized into salutary deeds. Everyone should, therefore, cultivate the fine art of looking ahead, and, as Matthew Arnold says, of seeing life steadily and seeing it whole. And this requires quite a bit of doing these days.

QUESTION.

Little Rock, Ark.

I am a hard worker, but I seem to have no personality. I have tried to cultivate it since I was 18, but with no result, and I am now twenty-three. I believe I could sit on the top of the world if I only had the gift of putting myself across. As it is, I feel like giving up the fight.

ANSWER.

There is a big gap between "the top of the world" and your present gulf of despair. I suspect you indulge a little exaggeration in your self-portraiture. That is very par-

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

'BLACK WIDOW' SPIDER BITE INFLICTS SERIOUS WOUNDS

The kissing bug used to be reported several years ago. The bug was supposed to bite people on the lip while they were asleep, causing a good deal of swelling and discomfort. I can remember quite an epidemic of kissing bug reports two or three times since I began the practice of medicine. The only cases which were ever identified proved to be spider bites.

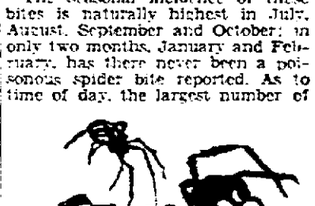

Dr Cleadening

When spiders are mentioned the one which comes to mind as being the most dangerous is the tarantula, but, as a matter of fact, the tarantula seldom does any harm, and in tarantula countries there is a great deal of skepticism as to whether spider bites ever cause poison. This skepticism can be allayed, however, because there is no question that at least one spider is capable of inflicting extremely serious wounds. This is the "black widow" or "shoe button" spider. It is the female, we are proud to be able to report, that causes the damage.

I caught one of these spiders last year and was able to observe it carefully. It is really a very beautiful animal, being shiny black with a vivid red mark on the under side of its body.

The spider is found in more than half the states of the union. The largest number of poisonous bites reported are from California, but there are a good many in all of the southern states, and even in such northern states as Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Maryland. Twelve deaths from spider bites have been reported in California and one each in Kansas, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma and Virginia. Poisonings serious enough to result in hospital treatment have occurred in nearly all the states.

The seasonal incidence of these bites is naturally highest in July, August, September and October; in only two months, January and February, has there never been a poisonous spider bite reported. As to time of day, the largest number of bites occur in the early morning hours, and from 7 in the evening to 10.

If you dissect out the poison sac in one of these black widow spiders you will find the cause for the extreme severity of the symptoms following the bite. Other poisonous spiders have a very small amount of poison, but this one has developed a large poison sac which goes back of the mouth parts on the side of the body. The venom is secreted in this, and is far more dangerous than rattlesnake venom.

The symptoms of poisoning and their treatment should be made known, and will be discussed in the article tomorrow.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A Black Robber Turns Tail

All down the years from days of old,
The timid have through love been bold.
—Old Mother Nature.

Little Mrs. Peter Rabbit naturally is a timid person. I know of no one more timid. Sometimes it seems as if she is afraid of her own shadow. Yet there are times when Mrs. Peter is as brave and bold as the bravest and boldest. It is love, mother love, that makes her so. It was this that enabled her to go out to meet Flip the Terrier at the risk of her life and lead him away from the nest where lay the six helpless babies. It was a very brave and a very bold thing to do, but she did it without a thought of self.

Mrs. Peter breathed a sigh of relief

Those babies had grown fast and were growing fast. Every night when she went to feed them she could see the difference in their size. They were no longer nearly naked. They had fine little fur coats and in a few days they would have their eyes open. Mrs. Peter's heart swelled with pride every time she looked at them. So far she had succeeded in keeping their existence a secret. Not even Peter knew of them. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy had visited the dear Old Brior-patch on the chance that there might be some young Rabbits, but after carefully searching all around it and even poking their heads inside at various places had gone away disappointed. They had found nothing whatever to suggest that there were any babies.

It was the next day after their visit that Mrs. Peter sat just inside the edge of the Briar-patch at a place from which she could look out over the Green Meadows and keep watch of that place in the long grass where her nest was hidden. A faint rustling in the leaves a little to one side of where she sat caught her attention. At first she saw nothing to account for it. The something moved. She sat perfectly still with her eyes fixed on that spot. Suddenly Kitty the Catbird, who had her nest in the Old Briar-patch, began to shriek and dart down into a clump of bushes. In almost no time at all the feathered folk in the neighborhood had joined Kitty. Such a racket as they made! Then Mrs. Peter saw the cause of all the excitement and anger. It was Mr. Blacksnake. She knew then that it was he who had made that rustling that had caught her attention. He had come over to the dear Old Briar-patch to look for eggs and young birds, and now that he had been discovered by the feathered folk he was in a bad temper.

He wasn't afraid of any of these feathered folk. Of course not. He was far too big to be afraid of any or all of them, but he was annoyed. He didn't like this public attention. Now and then he would strike at one of his tormentors but always they kept just out of reach. How glad Mrs. Peter was that her babies were not in the Briar-patch. She knew that not even young birds were more to Mr. Blacksnake's liking than young Rabbits. Yes, indeed, she was thankful that those precious babies were not there.

And then Mr. Blacksnake suddenly decided that he had had enough of this annoyance. He glided swiftly out of the Briar-patch into the grass of the Green Meadows, all the birds in pursuit. Mrs. Peter breathed a sigh of relief. Then she was fairly frozen with horror. Mr. Blacksnake was heading straight for that long grass where her babies were hidden! Of course he didn't know they were there, but if he kept on as he was going he would surely find them.

Mrs. Peter leaped out and after him. She could see the moving grass where he was, and any way the birds were keeping just above him and darting down at him. With a few leaps she was at his tail. She bit it. Mr. Blacksnake whirled in a rage and coiled to strike. Mrs. Peter leaped over him and struck hard with those stout hind-feet of hers. Mr. Blacksnake also struck, but all he got was a mouthful of fur. Mrs. Peter leaped and struck again, while all the birds shrieked encouragement. You never would have suspected Mrs. Peter of being timid. She was a fighting fury. And Mr. Blacksnake was getting the worst of it. The first chance he got he darted away toward the Old Pasture. Mrs. Peter followed a little way. Then all a tremble she returned, made sure her babies were safe, and went on to her look-out place in the Old Briar-patch.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE JUNE GROOM.

Behold his white and nervous hands
As at the altar now he stands
Awaiting her. The organ plays
The march of countless wedding days,
And now the eyes of all desert
The spotless splendor of his shirt,
And turn to gaze upon the bride,
Who'll soon be kneeling at his side.

I watch him waiting at the aisle,
Almost too terrified to smile;
His evening clothes, his linen white,
His small bow tie exactly right,
And now with stately step and slow
The bridesmaids come in single row;
But not an eye in all the room
Remains to gaze upon the groom.

June roses and June grooms appear
The same with every passing year.
Once, eight and twenty year sago,
I waited for her, trembling so,
And in the place where now he stands
I stood with pale and nervous hands
A groom, but now grown gray and fat,
Who looked and acted just like that.

"When you come up" you'll find Old Golds!

says Mae West

"It seems to me that the occasional smoker is a better judge of a cigarette than the constant smoker. At least, your occasional smoker is apt to be more critical.

"Off the screen I never smoke. On the screen, I smoke when the part demands it. And I want a cigarette that is non-irritating, mild and easy on the throat. After trying many brands I settled upon Old Gold as my 'picture smoke.' It's delightfully smooth—and free of bite—and doesn't give the least discomfort to the throat.

"If I ever decide to take up smoking in earnest, you may be sure Old Gold will be my brand."

(Signed) MAE WEST

The net of it is this, Miss West:

No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

The body was taken to Fairmont.

QUIGLEY TO RUN BURKE CAMPAIGN

Valentine Man Takes Charge Headquarters In Omaha.

Says Roosevelt Is Issue In Campaign And Accuses Bryan.

OMAHA June 25—Judge J C Quigley prominent democratic leader of Valentine will manage the senatorial campaign of Edward R Burke according to announcement made by Homer Gruenther the congressman's secretary. Judge Quigley has taken charge of the campaign headquarters in the Loyal hotel and will devote his entire time to the campaign until primary day.

Meanwhile, Congressman Burke is not expected to return from Washington until Wednesday. In correspondence with his office he stated that he would be delayed because of conferences he is holding with officials of the Commodity Credit corporation and the housing corporation.

Mr Burke stated that he was making headway with the Commodity Credit corporation in his efforts to get the settlement day for farmers of the corn states who have made loans with the government on their corn, extended from August 1, the date the loans are due to November 1. If this is accomplished Mr Burke stated it would keep in excess a quarter of a billion bushels of corn now under government seal, off the market until later this year. This in turn would enable the price of corn to continue its upward trend.

Plans Active Campaign.

In a telephone conversation with Gruenther Saturday, Judge Quigley stated that he planned to have Congressman Burke launch an active forty day campaign the first of July.

"Judge Quigley is one of the most respected and widely known political leaders in the entire state," said Gruenther, "and his joining the 'Burke for Senator' ranks is an indication of the calibre of men and women who are offering their loyal support to Mr. Burke."

According to the plans, Judge Quigley will have complete charge of all phases of the campaign, and, besides directing its activities, will make several talks at strategic points over the state.

Letter To Bryan.

At the time announcement was made that Judge Quigley would manage the Burke campaign the Valentine man sent to Governor Bryan a letter telling the latter why he had decided upon such action. In this letter he said in part:

"I have definitely made up my mind that Congressman E R Burke is the proper and logical candidate for the United States senate. It has taken me some several weeks to make this decision. I have reviewed the situation calmly and dispassionately and by reason of the many years that we have fought the fight together I feel that you are entitled to know why I reached that conclusion.

"I start with the premise that I am for Franklin D Roosevelt 100 per cent. He has made and is making a courageous and magnificent fight to lead us back not only on the path of recovery but on the path of reform. He needs and must have the loyal and sincere support of every citizen. I freely and sincerely give him mine without expectation of favor nor thought of reward. I say this in all humility.

Roosevelt The Issue

"I believe that Mr Roosevelt and his policies will be the issue confronting us this fall. The president will be an indirect candidate for office. The democratic nominee for United States senator will win or lose on the Roosevelt policies. I want the fight to be direct and I want our nominee to be so pro-Roosevelt that no question can be raised as to his loyalty or devotion. I believe that our party should offer such a candidate and that we then go to battle under the banner of Mr Roosevelt.

"Such a man is Mr Burke. He has been a member of the congress during the present administration. His record proves absolute loyalty and devotion. We Roosevelt democrats need unquestioned Roosevelt leadership.

Records Compared

"Comparing his records with yours and being honest with myself and with my party I am convinced that when he was on the battlefront loyally supporting the president of the United States you were in the rear doing a lot of sniping. I cannot forget that in the most critical period of the recovery program you were complaining publicly of the NRA. I well remember your speech to the Farmers union convention at Omaha in the dark days. I am dissatisfied with your announced platform. I feel that you are advocating policies that are not favored by the administration and that are not for the national welfare.

"This then so far as this campaign is concerned is the parting of the ways. It is with real regret that I so address you. By reason of our long friendship and political co-operation I have taken a lot of time to carefully weigh the situation. In all good conscience having in mind the future welfare of our great party I make this decision. If a majority of our people say that I am wrong in my conclusion, I will obviously accept the verdict and if you are our nominee I will give you loyal support."

HOLD SERVICES CRASH VICTIMS

Three Lose Lives When Car Goes Over An Embankment.

ELWOOD Neb June 25—(AP)—A triple funeral service was held on the Gosper county courthouse lawn here Sunday for the three victims of an automobile accident five miles southwest of Bertrand last Friday. Burial was made in the Elwood cemetery. Those killed were Ray Wolgamott, 48 farmer near Curtis, Rolla Wolgamott 35 farmer near Edison and brother of Ray and La Verna Wolgamott 15, daughter of Rolla. Wayne Wolgamott 25 son of Ray was the driver of the car. He escaped with bruises and cuts.

Wayne said they were en route from his grandfather's funeral held at Hastings. He drove off the grade in a belated attempt to make a turn in the road, and after the car clung to the edge of the grade for several feet it overturned.

The grade was only about five feet deep but the car pinned most of the victims beneath it. Ray suffered a crushed chest, Rolla internal injuries and La Verna a fractured skull. All died within a few minutes. Wayne, who formerly lived in this vicinity said he knew the road but was hurrying on account of an approaching storm.

County Attorney O E Bozarth and Sheriff R. L. Bragg investigated the accident.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev Loren De Witt, pastor of the Christian church here. Ray is survived by his widow and several children besides Wayne. Rolla is survived by his widow and three children. Other members of the two families were riding in other cars en route home by different routes at the time of the accident.

Cotton Sets Course Record In British Open

Sarazen, Shute Trail Well Behind Leaders In First Round Play

BY F. A. WRAY.

SANDWICH, Eng., June 25—(INS)—For the first time in many years, Great Britain completely stole the Americans' thunder today at the start of the annual British open golf championship, Henry Cotton shooting a 66 at St. George's to equal the championship record. The other 66 was made by Bobby Jones at Sunningdale some years ago, also in the qualifying round.

Breaks To Cotton.

Cotton got two breaks in making his score, being seeded to start at St. George's, which was considered easier than the other qualifying course, Deal, while he also played in perfect weather, with hardly the suggestion of a wind. Later, especially when Joe Kirkwood, the American, was shooting a 36-39—75, it was practically blowing a gale.

His 75 equalled that of Gene Sarazen, the American who broke all championship records with his 283 here two years ago; while Mac Smith, a third American, also had a 75. Denny Shute, rounding out the American big four, was one stroke higher, the defending champion having two 38's for a 76. He played St. George's, Sarazen and Smith taking on the harder assignment at Deal.

The Americans, in other words, failed for once to dominate the situation. They have won this championship for ten consecutive years and twelve out of the last thirteen times the tournament has been held.

Martin Is Second.

But today not only did Cotton tie the qualifying round record and break the royal St. George's course record with his 66 but D. H. R. Martin, an almost unknown British amateur, was in second place with a 70. This incidentally broke the amateur record for Royal Cinque Ports, official name for Deal.

Moreover, four of those next in line at 71, Cecil Denny, Aubrey Boomer, S. B. Roberts and Bert Gadd, were British while a fifth entry, Angel Dela Torre, Spain, also shot a 71. There were many other low scores, Phil Rodgers having a 72, Ernest and Reggie Whitcombe a pair of 73's and seven Americans being tied at 74.

Yet this wasn't the championship proper. The latter really does not start until Wednesday, so that not even Cotton's record will go down in the records of the actual scores and his six-strokes-under-par performance will not help him at all, except probably to win the qualifying medal. The best score in the championship proper, a 67, belongs to Walter Hagen, the American. It was made in the second round at Muirfield in 1929.

"Mac" Smith Does Well.

Barring Mac Smith, the Americans merely played comfortably and, in truth, not so well. Smith, by contrast, shot thirteen holes from the second to the fourteenth inclusive in three under par, missing putts for eagles and birdies by inches on at least five holes. Then he took four 5's on the finishing holes to finish with his 75.

Sarazen started with an 18-footer for a birdie at the first but, after that, he began to misjudge his pitch shots in the wind and only a 30-footer at the tenth, a 15-footer at the fourteenth and a 9-footer at the seventeenth kept him close to par, as it was, his 75, as well as that of Smith, was only one stroke over for the long and difficult Royal Cinque Ports.

Shute, not unlike Smith, was none too fortunate with his long putts, quite a few of them teetering precariously on the lip of the cup. He even missed a 4-footer for a birdie at the sixth but managed to hole a 25-footer at the eighth. Shute's usually conservative game was not too greatly in evidence at any time, however.

Cotton Great With Irons.

As for Cotton, his iron play was so impeccable that only once did he face a long putt— a 15-footer which he sank at the third—and only once was he lucky, this break coming when his ball stopped a foot from a trap on one of the late holes.

Others with low scores today were Tom Williamson, 74; Nicasia Sergardia, 73; Percy Allis, 74; Martin Smith, 77. These were made over the St. George's links. At Deal, Auguste Boyer had a 73, F. E. Dennis, 75, J. J. Taylor 75 and S. L. King 74.

British successes today brought a big change in the betting odds. Cotton now is quoted at 8 instead of 10 to 1; Sarazen jumped from 6 to 8 to 1; Shute is quoted at 25 to 1 and Mac Smith at 20 to 1.

CORUM'S CHATTER

BY BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, June 25—(INS)—William Shakespeare, the favorite author of the motion picture barons, once put on a pretty good show and called it "The Two Gentlemen of Verona." It was a hit in good Queen Bess' day. But Shakespeare was lucky.

Jack Curley, who is opening his outdoor repertoire season in the Madison Square Garden bowl, Woodside, this evening, has only one Gentleman of Verona. Jack is going to have to do the best he can with this one and a golden Greek.

The golden Greek is Londos and they call him that perhaps because he has made so much gold out of wrestling. The Gentleman from Verona is Champion Browning, a Verona, Mo., boy who made good with Curley. Both boys named Jim. Both now members of this club.

The New York state boxing commission has sanctioned this meeting of the Jims as "a match" in contradiction to an exhibition. But in view of what happened prior to the Baer-Carnera prizefight there is doubt in certain quarters whether the boxing commission knows a match when it sees one.

This boxing commission also banned the Enzo Fiermonte-Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom title fight on the ground that 'andsome Enzo was no fit associate for Slapsie Maxie in the ring.

IN VIEW of the frequent verbal and legal tilts between the Johnston Freres-James Joy and Charles Cheerful—and one member of the commission, the disinterested observer is constrained to wonder if the fact that Charles Cheerful was 'andsome Enzo's manager of record had anything to do with the barring of the blue book's boxer.

I am frankly a trifle put out with the commission on purely selfish grounds. This Fiermonte-Rosenbloom fight looked as though it would make the best writing bout of the entire summer, and I was having my flannels laundered for a descent on Signor Fiermonte's exclusive Long Island training camp, when the solemn solons up and gave the bout the business.

The excuse was protection of the public. This commission appears to be suffering from a complex on that score. It came reasonably close to "protecting the public" out of the biggest, best and most thrilling fight in years with a belated discovery that Max Baer was not a gymnasium fighter.

It is doubtful if it comes within the scope of a boxing commission to tell the public how to spend its money, and for their own sakes, the estimable gentlemen of the New York board should ask themselves whoever got fat trying to protect the people against themselves?

This country had an experience along those lines with a thing called prohibition, with what disastrous results all the world knows. Fewer rulings and more fun in boxing would be an excellent goal for all commissions.

BUT I am getting a long way from Mons. Curley's wrestling presentation in the garden's hoodoo bowl. I call it a hoodoo bowl because no champion has successfully defended his title in it. Even the men who built it are long since gone from the sporting scene. It was Bill Carey's idea and it was Carey who built it. A chap named Jimmy Walker chauffeured the tractor that tossed the first shoveful of dirt on a raw February or March day.

The photographers got in their innings and the mayor said a few well chosen, as usual, words and then we all went across the street over a big garage and had luncheon and talked over the radio and I recall predicting when my time came, that it would someday be the most famous sports arena in the world—one that would see more titles won and lost than any in history.

Well, I don't know about its having become the world's most famous arena. But it is surely well on its way toward a record in being the scene of the crowning of champions. Even the championship for which Browning and Londos are competing tonight was won and lost there, when the elderly Ed Lewis took it from that handsome German who could wrestle but who couldn't draw the customers.

Now what was his name? Oh yes, Shikat. Dick Shikat. Londos won the title from him in Philadelphia on what was supposed to be a short term lease. I believe, and then went away and forgot to give it back.

That was not considered exactly kosher in the higher circles of Greco-Roman society, and unless I am mistaken was one of the things that led up to the break between the golden Greek and our Mr. Curley.

OUR Mr. Curley finally reached the point in this situation where he had some bitter things to say about the golden Greek. Bitter, blunt and burning. There was a period when the mailman up our way had to carry Mons. Curley's correspondence to yours sincerely in a special asbestos pouch, so warm were his remarks anent Jimmy the well dressed wrestler.

So Jimmy went away to more distant but scarcely greener pastures and one Curley champion followed another Curley champion hereabouts in more or less regular and monotonous succession. And finally the whole thing wound up with the present partnership of Browning, Curley & Co.

This combination has made out fairly well, but it lacks the old G. A. or gate appeal of Londos in his glory hereabouts, when the lads and ladies too—oh yes, most assuredly the ladies, too—used to fairly fight their way in to see the young man with the limousine body give one rival after the other the business, the word business being used advisedly.

Therefore, I have a hunch that the golden Greek may return from Elba in tonight's hot tussle over the bridge. It would seem to be a sounder solution from an economic standpoint, and a good many seasons of peering at wrestling bouts has served to convince me that the economic angle is seldom, if ever, ignored.

A jolly guest at a jolly wedding party on Saturday evening, Promoter Curley told me that with fair weather today this show would draw the biggest gate in the history of the sport. I hope he's right and that it will prove to be as sensational for the wrestling fan whose name seems to be legion as the Baer-Carnera fight was for the boys who go to the prize [illegible].

Being a reasonably honest fellow I can't say that I like wrestling. But I do like Jack Curley and no show he puts on can draw too many folks to suit me. And I'll probably sit in on it, too. After all, it's the only show in town tonight.

LINCOLN SPLITS WITH ELKHORNS

Norfolk Blanks Griffins In Opener; Links Win Second, 13-2.

The heavy-hitting Lincoln Links Links did not hit so hard in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader in the Nebraska league play at Landis Field. Consequently, the Griffins suffered their first shutout defeat of the year, 10-0, but came back to wallop the Elks in the second game, 13-2, to earn an even split. The even division left the Links five and one-half games ahead of the second-place Beatrice nine.

Pitcher Peterson allowed eight hits in the first game, but kept them well scattered—so well, in fact, that the Links only once combined enough offensive effort to bring a man as far around the bases as the third hassock. Three double killings, two by Lincoln, livened the game, which was the fastest at the park this year, 1 hour and 27 minutes. A double error by Manager Pug Griffin afforded the crowd ampe opportunity to jeer, Pug booting Silvey's roller in the sixth and throwing badly in an attempt to catch Graham at the plate.

Potter Hits Homer.

The second game was the reverse. Norfolk started strong when Silvey's single rolled through Callahan's legs and the Elk first-sacker circled the sacks. Potter's home run with Genzlinger on in the second started the Lincoln attack, with the game iced in the fourth frame when six tallies chased across the plate. It was a rude welcoming for Art Neely, Norfolk chucker, who was released by Lincoln two weeks ago.

Genzlinger came up with the afternoon's most brilliant catch, taking Neely's would-be hit over his shoulder on a dead run. Ray Zimmerman's five hits in eight tries led the sticking. Score:

TILDEN RALLIES DEFEATS KOZELUH

DETROIT, June 25—(AP)—William T. Tilden, put on a sensational rally Sunday to defeat Karl Kozeluh in the finals of the Great Lakes professional tennis tournament 0-6, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4. Kozeluh defaulted the deciding set.

Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill emerged as the tournament's doubles winners, defeating Tilden and Bruce Barnes in the finals in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

College Track Meet Pulls Well At Gate

LOS ANGELES, June 25—(INS)—Financial success of the first national collegiate track championships to be staged outside of Chicago today virtually assured the permanent transfer of the cinder classic to the Los Angeles coliseum made famous by the Olympic games in 1932.

More than 30,000 spectators saw Stanford annex the national title won last year by Louisana state, which was forced into third place with Southern California, host to the meet, a close second. Saturday's crowd, with the 10,000 that saw the preliminaries Friday, more than paid the $25,000 that Southern California had posted to pay the expenses here of selected stars from all corners of the nation.

Camera's Eye Changes Judges' Decisions In National Collegiates

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

LOS ANGELES, June 25—(AP)—The camera's eye and electrical timing threatened today to rout judges and timers of intercollegiate track events from the courses and drive them into the stands with the customers. Definite indication of this was given when officials of the N. C. A. A. championships last Saturday boldly rewrote the finish of five of the eight running events after a minute study of motion pictures of the races.

Ringside Seats For Lincoln Fight Fans

Lincoln fight fans who were unable to attend the Carnera-Baer championship brawl because of distance and finances will have a ringside seat when the talkies of the big scrap are shown at the Orpheum this week.

The movies are clear and include a series of "slow motions" of the blows which send the big fella to the canvas.

Champion Loses Out.

Although the eye of the camera was relied upon over the human eye in a general re-awarding of places, the manual timing was passed tentatively as official despite the fact it conflicted with electrical clocking.

One champion was shorn of his crown, and the team points were shifted materially, although Stanford's victory was not altered. The I. C. A. A. A. A. champions from Palo Alto ran up a total of 63 points. The revisions added four to Southern California's figures, giving the second-place Trojans 57 7-20. Louisiana State, 1933 champion, lost four in the shuffle, but held to third with 43.

The electrical motion picture timing device probably deprived Glenn Hardin, L. S. U's great quarter-miler and hurdler, of a world record in the 220-yard low barriers. It clocked him in 23.16 seconds, whereas the stop watches showed his time as 22.7.

The award of places in the 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, and 440-yard dash were changed considerably.

Fisher Loses Hurdles.

George Fisher, Louisiana State, Saturday was awarded the 120-yard high barrier title and given the gold medal. Some ten hours later Sam Klopstock, Stanford, was given official recognition as the winner.

The Louisiana timber-skipper was shunted back to third place after the officials had several good looks at the pictures, with Amsden Oliver, Miami, second. The camera said the time was 14.63, as compared with the hand-timed mark of 14.4.

There was no question of Ralph Metcalfe's victory in the 100-yard dash, but Hunter Russell, Illinois, originally listed third, was given a tie for second with Charles Parsons, Southern California.

Hall Back To Sixth.

Sterling Dupree of Auburn profited by the picture inspection in the furlong. He was moved from sixth to fifth and Ed Hall of Kansas dropped back one place to sixth. Likewise, in the 22-yard low hurdles, W. H. Randow, Texas A. & M., placed sixth by the judges, was given fifth and Bacon dropped back to sixth.

The other change came in the quarter-mile with Ed Ablowich Southern California, jumping from the also-ran list into fifth place. Jimmy Lu Valle, University of California at Los Angeles was dropped to seventh.

If the camera times are counted, Hardin may suffer the loss of what would have been a new N. C. A. A. record in the quarter. The clockers caught it in 47 seconds flat, but the electric watch said 47.51.

A true picture of Bill Bonthron's victory over Glenn Cunningham in the mile, was provided by the camera. The Princeton star was clocked in 4 minutes 8.9 seconds, a new N. C. A. A. record, while the Kansan crossed the line in 4:10.52. Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania, was third in 4 minutes 15.28 seconds.

Canzoneri Given Odds Over Klick

NEW YORK, June 25—(INS)—The boxing bout between Frankie Klick, San Francisco, and Tony Canzoneri at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night, heads one of the greatest betting fight cards arranged in a long time.

Canzoneri rules a slight favorite in the betting, mainly because he has fought more of his important battles here than his opponent, who is better known in the west, where he fought a spectacular draw with Barney Ross, light and welterweight champion of the world.

J. Hamilton Lorimer, original manager of Max Baer, placed one wager of $1,000 yesterday, at even money on Klick, and he has $4,000 more to lay at the same odds.

BAMBINO HELPS YANKEE VICTORY

Ruth Hits Homer With Bases Loaded To Help 5-0 Win.

BY GENE LAWRENCE.

NEW YORK, June 25—(INS)—Sad Sam Jones, veteran hurler of the Chicago White Sox, was a bit sadder today, the victim of one of those dramatic happenings that make baseball the game it is.

The villain of the play was that master dramatist, George Herman Ruth, who trod the boards with Sam 20 years ago. Sam was pitching against the New York Yankees yesterday with a typical Casey-at-the bat setting. There were two down and the bases were full, with Ruth at bat.

Held hitless in his last 21 times at bat, the old home run king looked to be a soft touch. His war club seemed no more effective than a piece of Swiss cheese. But the Babe came out of his slump with a bang, driving the ball far into the bleachers and giving the Yanks a 5 to 0 win. Charley Ruffing pitched an airtight game for New York, holding the Sox to five hits.

Tigers Game Behind.

The pace-setting Detroit Tigers remained a game in front of the Yanks by knocking Vernon Wilshere, former Indiana university star, out of the box and drubbing the Athletics 8 to 4. Bob Johnson of the A's, the new home run king, smacked his 22nd four bagger of the year.

The Cleveland Indians took their place in the American league away from Boston and handed their old playmate, Wes Ferrell, his first defeat of the year, by scoring four runs in the ninth and beating the Sox 6 to 2.

Holding the Browns to five hits, Wally Stewart of Washington turned in a 7 to 0 shutout. A triple by Harris with the bases full was the big noise.

Giants Win Slugfest.

The Giants increased their lead over St. Louis to three games in the National league scramble by taking a 9 to 7 slugfest from the Cards. New York put the game on ice with a six-run uprising in the fifth inning, during which Manager Bill Terry clouted a triple and a single.

The Cubs got back into the party with a double win over Brooklyn. Pat Malone won a 5 to 1 decision over Van Mungo in the opener with the aid of homers by Babe Herman and Hurst. In the nightcap Bud Tinning blanked the Dodgers 8 to 0.

Battering four hurlers, Pittsburgh shellacked the Phillies 11 to 9. Paul Waner leading the attack with a homer and a triple.

Flint Rhem, the old kidnaped kid, made good for the Boston Braves, winning a 2 to 0 duel from Paul Derringer of Cincinnati. But the nightcap, a wild affair in which nothing but the strangle hold was barred, went to the Reds, 10 to 7.

Tidball Gets Back At California Rival

NEW YORK, June 25—(INS)—Revenge tasted sweet today to Jack Tidball, of the University of California at Los Angeles, national intercollegiate tennis champion.

Beaten five successive times on the Pacific coast by Gene Mako of the University of Southern California, Tidball partly squared accounts at the Richmond County Country club yesterday by defeating the U. S. C. star in the final of the eastern intercollegiate tournament in a grueling five-set match. The score was 1-6, 6-0, 7-9, 6-1, 6-4.

Farmers Benefit $185,000,000 By Hog Price Boost

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—The sensational advance of hog prices since May 28 has added more than $185,000,000 to the market value of swine on American farms, C. D. Streeter of Keokuk, Ia., president of the Association of American Pork Growers, said.

"The average price of 230-pound hogs at Chicago on May 28 was $7.80 and this week the price is approximately $11.15," he said.

He based his estimate on the advance in market value on the government's recent indication that there were 56,000,000 hogs on American farms.

Lighter receipts since the peak of the drouth crisis, accompanied by an improved demand for pork products, have been responsible, Streeter said.

More than 200 young people from 10 towns attended the two-day affair. Next year's meetings will be held at Oakland, Neb.

Stocks Market Has Another Dull Trading Session; Few Issues Record Any Substantial Change

N. Y. Exchange Is Irregular At Close

Meat Packing Group Makes Best Showing; Sales About 450,000.

NEW YORK, June 25—(P)—

The stock market suffered another exceptionally dull trading session today and few issues recorded any substantial change on either the up or down sides. The meat packing group made the best showing while the metals were relatively heavy. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated only 450,000 shares.

There was little news that might have spurred equities to better deeds. Some of the inertia was attributed to the inclination of operators to await the naming of the new exchange control commission before taking a definite market position.

Greatly increased movements of new wheat caused that staple to lose more than 2 cents a bushel and other grains were sympathetically lower. Cotton developed strength, however, and silver and rubber futures were moderately higher. Bonds were sluggish and mixed. International dollar movements were narrow.

Hog and cattle prices were a little lower, but the packing company stocks were believed to have reflecte dthe recent firmness of livestock rates and the prospects of further betterment. There was a brief flurry in some of the oils and sugars, but it was not particularly impressive.

Shares of Armour of Illinois, Wilson and Cudahy held gains of fractions to more than a point. American Can was up about a point. The sugar issues, 1 to 2 points higher at one time, ended only about steady. Losers of fractions to around 2 points included U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, Amerada, Kennecott, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Du Pont, American Smelting, Columbian Carbon, Allied Chemical and Commercial Solvents. The alcohols, aircraft and utilities were somewhat resistant.

After the close the American Iron & Steel institute estimated steel production this week at 44.7 per cent of capacity against 56.1 per cent last week.

While the belief was general that higher prices will be seen this fall, most commentators hesitated to venture even the most cautious forecasts as to near-term equity movements.

In some quarters an upturn in the capital goods industries was expected to point the way for stocks. In the manufacturing end it was recalled that while the dollar has been devalued by 40 per cent, thereby indicating a probable price rise of 66 2-3 per cent, prices have actually risen only about 20 per cent thus far. Various industrialists who have been studying this apparent gap were reported planning modernization of their plants and equipment before such a course entails considerably more expense.

Those who hold that costs will rise, base their reasoning on the belief that, if the gold bloc countries are forced off the standard this summer, and England further depreciates sterling, America will find it necessary to cut another piece out of the dollar, that large government outlays, especially those for relief, and the growing budget deficits, may in fact generate an inflationary price advance, and, finally, if business progress shows signs this summer of suffering a severe set-back the administration will administer a fresh stimulus.

Wall street found confirmation for other indications that business was resisting seasonal influences toward recession in the monthly review of the federal reserve board which reported a slight gain in industrial production last month and drew attention to the sustained level of steel operations through the first three weeks in June.

The reserve board's index of industrial production advanced in May to 87 per cent of the 1923-25 average of activity compared with 86 per cent in April. Little change was noted in factory employment and payrolls.

The magazine "Steel" estimated steel operations last week were at 59 per cent of capacity, a drop of only 3 points from the previous week. Operations have been falling off less sharply than had been anticipated as the second quarter draws near an end, it added.

The unpromising outlook in steel buying next month, the magazine continued, has been relieved somewhat by postponement of the threatened steel strike and an increase in July automobile production schedules.

Automobile passenger car sales for May were estimated by R. L. Polk & Co. at 217,003 units compared with 222,900 in April and with 160,225 in May, 1933.

Foreign exchanges were narrow in early dealings. The British pound opened at $5.03⅜ off ¼ of a cent. French francs were .00⅛ of a cent lower at 6.59½ points.

Wheat Values Take a Tumble

Close Is Weak, 1⅞-2⅜c Lower; Corn Finishes ⅛-½c Off.

CHICAGO, June 25—(P)—

Greatly increased movement of new wheat in the southwest, totaling more than 3,300 carloads, did much today to tumble prices down.

Rains reported in parts of Europe and in Australia had a notable further bearish influence. The Liverpool market failed to follow Saturday's upturns here, and closed today ½ cent a bushel lower.

Wheat closed weak, at virtually the day's bottom level, 1⅞-2⅜c under Saturday's finish, July 90½-⅝c, September 91¼-⅜c, corn ⅛-½c down, July 56¼-⅜c, Sep. 58⅛-¼c, oats ½-¾c off, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents lower.

Material setbacks of Chicago wheat prices early today followed outright refusal of the Liverpool market to follow Saturday's advance here. On today's early downturns here, however, good rallying power was shown. Opening ⅛ to 1⅜c lower, Chicago wheat afterward steadied for the time being at about ½ cent under Saturday's finish. Corn started ⅝c off to ⅛c up, and subsequently altered little.

New downturns of Chicago wheat quotations later carried the market lower, a maximum decline of about 2 cents in some cases demand not proving aggressive enough to uphold values. Liverpool dispatches said the market there did not follow the North American advance of Saturday owing to general rains in England, Germany and France over the weekend. Some drouth relief was also noted in Australia, ti was further pointed out that stocks of wheat at Liverpool were large, and quantities on ocean passage to importing countries had increased again this week.

Active as an additional weight on the market were big arrivals of newly harvested domestic winter wheat southwest, Kansas City today repring 1,000,000 bushels and Wichita, 933,000. The first cars of Illinois wheat reached Chicago today, ten days earlier than last season. Forecasts indicated cooler weather and showers tonight in spring wheat states northwest. Rains over the corn belt had a bearish effect on corn and oats prices.

Provisions were easy, responsive to downturns of cereals.

Wheat futures purchases Saturday totaled 29,445,000 bushels, corn 8,592,000. Open interest in wheat was 106,326000 bushels and in corn 59,652,000.

About midsession, wheat was 1¼@1⅜ lower, compared with Saturday's finish, and corn was ¾@⅞s down.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 108 cars, a week ago 142, and a year ago 150.

Corn and other grains were affected by the action of wheat and averaged lower with scattered liquidation developing at times, but in the main corn and oats showed considerable resistance to pressure. Crop experts who were out in northern and central Illinois over the week-end reported chinch bugs much in evidence.

Grain Notes

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—The grain markets executed a quick turnabout last week and ended with a flourish of strength. The sensationally bullish reports on the condition of European crops was regarded as the factor which caused the change in sentiment.

As harvesting in the southwest neared its peak, the receipts at terminal markets and interior points continued heavy. Until Saturday 1,992 cars representing nearly [illegible] bushels were received at 10 markets. Hedging pressure in the future [illegible] was heavy throughout the week and [illegible] buying came into the market [illegible] and Saturday it was [illegible] pushing the price of September wheat [illegible] of the low position of [illegible] cents a bushel.

The reports on the oats crop continued throughout the last week continued uniformly pessimistic.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 25—(P)—

The curb market displayed a steady to firm tone in quiet trading today. Gains of small fractions to around a point were well distributed with the exception of the inactive specialties, the majority of which were lower.

Oil stocks, leaders in a moderate upturn at the end of last week, extended their advances fractionally, although there was only a nominal turnover. Creole Petroleum and International Petroleum were higher, and Standard Oil of Indiana and others held steady around previous closing quotations.

New York & Honduras Rosario Mining advanced 1½ points, Technicolor improved around a half, and such issues as American Gas, American Super Power, Cord Corp., Distillers Corp. Seagrams, Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Niagara Hudson Power, Sherwin Williams, and Wright Hargreaves, gained small fractions.

In the specialty group, Safety Car declined more than a point on a single sale and Columbia Pictures, and Montgomery Ward "A," were unchanged to slightly lower. National Bellas Hess and American Cynamid "B" yielded small fractions.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 25—(P)—

Trading in the bond market was sluggish today and prices moved within narrow ranges.

Lack of demand had an unfavorable effect on some of the secondary classifications which sagged fractions to a point. High grade corporate issues and U. S governments were firm.

Loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Postal Telegraph, Southern Pacific, Nickel Plate United Drug & Western Union were transferred at moderately lower levels, while slight betterment marked American Smelting 5s, Armour & Co. 4½s, Erie 5s and a few more.

There was some interest in local Traction company bonds, notably Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 6s which duplicated their 1934 high. Consolidated Gas 4½s likewise repeated the best level for the year.

Only a few governments were traded during the forenoon and quotations were unchanged to 1-32nd higher for treasury 3⅜s, 3¾s and 4¼s.

The foreign list was firm in light dealings. Australia 5s, Colombia 6s, and German Agricultural bank 6s gained a point each and Brazil 6½s and Poland 7s were transferred at fractional gains. German government issues were steady and inactive.

Butter was easy in tone today. Eggs were easy, hens steady and chickens weak.

Rains over much of the producing country during the early part of the last week followed by extreme heat has tended to disturb operators who believe moisture would lead to production gains. Country outputs have not increased as yet, however, and storage movement in the four markets disclosed further losses comparatively. To date federal purchases have involved a fair supply of creamery butter.

Alberta Premier Goes to Trial on Seduction Charge

EDMONTON, Alta., June 25—(P)—The trial of a suit charging John E. Brownlee, premier of Alberta, with the seduction of Vivian MacMillan, pretty 19-year-old stenographer and daughter of a railway engineer, was called today.

Allan MacMillan, father of the girl and former mayor of Edmonton, is party to suit. Unstated damages are sought.

A statement filed by the plaintiffs charges Premier Brownlee induced Vivian to leave home by offering her a government job.

In a ounter claim, Brownlee asking $10,000 damages named John Caldwell, a young medical student, as co-defendant. Caldwell is the son of an Edmonton minister. Caldwell was once engaged to marry Vivian, but in her statement she asserts he broke the engagement when the Brownlee charges were made.

Vivian came here from Edson and was employed as a stenographer in the department of the attorney general. Several months after she arrived she filed the charges against the premier in the Supreme court.

One of the principal defense witnesses will be Carl Sneel, young school teacher who formerly taught at Edson. He refused to give evidence before a commission in Nova Scotia, preferring to come here in person to testify.

Six jurymen will hear the action The public was barred from the first session.

Brownlee in his counter claim denied the charges, asserting the case was a conspiracy to injure his reputation.

Couple Reported Beaten By Prowler

Mr. and Mrs. Berkson Say Were Attacked By Clubber While They Slept.

Police were searching Monday for a prowler who allegedly entered the J. B. Berkson home, 3343 Apple street, early Monday morning, beat both Mr. and Mrs. Berkson over the head with a blunt instrument, and escaped without loot.

Mr. Berkson told police that when he awoke at 3:45 a. m. a man was standing over him, striking him on the head but that when he raised out of bed, the man ran into the kitchen, jumped out of the window and disappeared. Berkson received bruises on the back of his head and on one knuckle.

Mrs. Berkson sustained an inch long cut on her forehead and a bruise on the back of her head.

The Berkson children, asleep in an adjoining room, heard the commotion and yelled "fire." Neighbors summoned the fire department who called police.

Robbery was apparently not the motive for the attack, police said, since money on a dressing table in Mr. Berkson's room was not disturbed.

The prowler entered the home by forcing open a kitchen window and screen.

TROOPS MAY BE CALLED TO HELP HUNT DILLINGER

Plan Co-ordination Of Federal, State And Local Authorities.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Methods whereby the army and national guard might assist in the offensive against John Dillinger were under discussion today at the justice department.

Details were guarded. Whether soldiers might be called upon to make the capture of the Dillinger gang certain, once they are cornered, was not disclosed.

Officials, striving to put everything the law has into the hunt for the "wooden gun" bandit and his pals, also went into huddles to co-ordinate federal, state and local authorities on the task.

Quick results may spring, officials hope, from rewards offered by Attorney General Cummins. The government will pay $10,000 for the capture of Dillinger and half that for information leading to his arrest. For the capture of Lester M. Gillis (Baby Face Nelson) $5,000 is posted, and $2,500 for information that will snare him.

The federal charge against Dillinger is transporting a stolen automobile across a state line. Nelson is wanted in connection with the murder of W. Carter Baum, department of justice agent, near Rhinelander, Wis., April 23.

HERMIT ELUDES POSSE AFTER HE KILLS TWO MEN

Shoots Neighbors To Death And Wounds Woman in Connecticut.

WOLCOTT, Conn., June 25—(P)—A hermit killer, John Crowe, 65, slipped through the paths of the Wolcott woods today, leaving two dead men and a wounded woman, and eluding a posse of several hundred officers and civilians.

Crowe fired a rifle point blank at Clarence Yuskis, jr., 22, in the Yuskis yard yesterday, killing the youth almost immediately; shot to death the hired man, Julius Karvauskas, 40, and wounded Mrs. Yuskis, Clarence's mother, in the head.

Leaping into his automobile, the killer drove 500 yards down the road, abandoned the car beyond a bend and fled to his home, a shack in a field adjoining the Yuskis property.

Killer Vanishes.

As a posse formed and advanced on the shack with machine guns and tear gas bombs, Crowe retreated unseen into the woods behind his house and vanished.

In the shack the posse found a miniature arsenal and several sticks of dynamite.

Police said he carried with him a rifle and a revolver, and that his woodland lore and knowledge of the region about Wolcott made him an elusive quarry.

Wolcott residents believed jealousy at the older Yuskis' success caused the shooting, but also recalled that there had been disputes over boundary lines between Crowe and the elder Yuskis.

Dazed Lincoln Man Wanders For 10 Hours

Sheldon Likens Found Walking Home After Car Hit Bridge.

Apparently dazed by the crashing of his car against the Salt creek bridge on North Fourteenth street at 1:45 o'clock Sunday morning, Sheldon Likens, 26, 1262 Belmont avenue, was missing for more than ten hours Sunday.

His family finally found him between 11 and 12 o'clock Sunday morning at Fourteenth and Holdrege streets, where he was walking towards his home.

He could recall nothing of what happened from the time of the crash until he recovered complete consciousness at Sixth and J streets when he was walking home.

Position of his wrecked car near the bridge gave some cause for fear early Sunday morning that his body might have been thrown from the machine into the creek. A Lincoln fire department squad was called at 2:37 a. m. and searched for some time with grappling hooks.

When Likens returned home, he found that everything in his pockets including tobacco, billfold and a small amount of money, was gone, according to his family.

Pavement Dip Nearly Ruins Officers Driving To Scene of Accident

Officers speeding to answer an accident call Sunday evening almost put themselves on the casualty list when their car and motorcycle hit a pavement dip on Twenty-second street, between Vine and Y streets.

Enroute to Twenty-second and Dudley streets, were Sergeant Herbert I. McDowell and Driver Jack Dunne in cruiser car 32. McDowell had three of his lower teeth loosened, while Dunne suffered a slightly sprained neck, a demolished straw hat, and a severe injury to his disposition, when their heads bounced against the top of the car.

Motorcycle Officer Joe Harbaugh wrenched one handle-bar of his motorcycle loose and knocked the air out of one of his tires when he hit the same dip. He did not spill, however, and continued on the call without stopping.

An ambulance, also answering the accident call, lost a chain off the rear trunk when it also hit the dip.

Mrs. J. H. Gadd Hurt In Fall From Auto

Mrs. J. H. Gadd suffered several bruises about the head and body when she fell from the car of her husband, J. H. Gadd, 617 South Twenty-seventh street, after it had collided with an automobile driven by J. L. Barton, 2820 R street near Twenty-seventh and R streets Sunday evening.

According to police, the Gadd automobile was going south on Twenty-seventh street while Mr. Barton was driving east on R.

$10,000 Reward, Not Dead

Fine Coin, Good Motto

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

The national government, having tried and failed offers $10,000 for "getting" the bandit, Dillinger; $5,000 for capturing his aid, "Baby Face" Nelson. Nothing is said of getting them "dead or alive," for government could not pay for killing somebody not yet convicted even though he may have 15 or 20 murders to his credit. You are expected to "arrest" Dillinger, which may not be easy.

You get half the reward for information enabling authorities to capture the desperado. It is unpleasant to reflect that dozens of Americans know, or have known, where Dillinger and his gang are, and have refrained from telling for fear of personal injuries, or worse, because of admiration for the professional "killers."

Dean Combs, of Worcester Polytechnic institute, says the colleges are turning out twice as many graduates as there are jobs for them to fill, and fears that "lack of employment opportunities will compel the great majority of college graduates to be satisfied with menial and inferior positions."

The possibility in the long run may be an excellent thing for the college graduate. Often a "mean, inferior position" is a good "college" on its own account. Lincoln, Edison, many others graduated from such positions.

A college education uses up four years of opportunity in which a young man might have established himself satisfactorily. Many young men from college, now wondering what to do, need not have wondered had they gone to work four years ago. And had they chosen to do so they could have acquired an education while working. You need not play football, baseball, or yell college yells to find out what is in books.

A man can acquire knowledge if he will. William Cullen Bryant, born in a New Hampshire log house, wanted to go to Yale; his father could not afford it. He studied Greek for a year under the Rev. Moses Hallock, and two months after he began studying the Greek alphabet, he had read the new testament through, in Greek.

At a recent sale of old coins, somebody paid $100 for a "brass dollar," of the time of Franklin, that dollar having stamped on it the words "mind your business."

If that dollar could make this country take that advice, it would be cheap at a hundred millions. Failing to mind our business has cost the United States many tens of billions, and will cost more in the future.

To "mind your business," which means to "attend to your business" is one thing that this country has seemed unable to do since President Wilson went wandering through Europe. At present the United States is invited, most urgently, to enter the League of Nations labor department. Two or three different nations offer to resign to make room for us.

Uncle Sam ought to look at that old brass dollar and say: "No, thanks. I shall mind my business, and regulating the world's labor for the league of nations is no part of it."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off

The famous Indian battle of the Little Big Horn or, as it is better known, "Custer's Last Stand," was fought 58 years ago today. It was, strange as it seems, one of the shortest battles in American history —the whole engagement lasted only 20 minutes—and it resulted in the complete annihilation of Custer's men.

The only living thing that escaped in the government ranks was a horse—Comanche. Comanche was a mount ridden by Capt. Miles W. Keogh, of Troop I. By special orders of the War Department, Comanche was never ridden again. He was retired for life.

The fact that D. B. Hawkins, Oskaloosa, Ia., has had no hands since boyhood, has not stopped him from earning his living by the use of his hands. He is now recorder of Mahaska county, a job which requires the constant use of the pen and typewriter in keeping the county records straight.

Mr. Hawkins lost his hands when he was 15 years old. He "hooked on" to a street car while riding his bicycle, but was thrown under the wheels. He lost his left arm just below the shoulder and his right hand just above the wrist.

With artificial hands, and a great deal of patience, he can now do just about everything anybody else can. In addition to his work as a public official he finds plenty to do in his spare moments. He is an enthusiastic fisherman, an accomplished woodworker, and for 13 years he was secretary of the local Eagles, keeping records of about 700 memberships.

Four Whites Hurt In Fight With Negroes Over Swimming Hole

A fight between whites and negroes over which had prior rights to certain portions of a Salt Creek swimming hole, south of the penitentiary, resulted in injury to four white people Sunday afternoon.

Most seriously injured of the four is M. F. Doty, 1529 P street, who suffered a fractured jaw and lacerations on his nose. Robert Brown, 4200 N street, suffered two scalp lacerations and one laceration on his forehead while his wife sustained two puncture wounds in the shoulder and hand from an ice pick. A small unidentified boy was also reported to be suffering from ice pick wounds. Dr. Robert Underwood attended them.

According to the story told by the white people, they had been swimming in the creek when a small group of negroes came along and started to swim in the same place. An argument ensued as to whether the colored people had a right to swim there. The negroes retreated, but soon returned, reinforced by others of their race.

There was no oficial report of the incident to police.

Everyday Questions

donable at twenty-three, but don't carry it into middle age. Why not make a close analysis of yourself, neither overestimating nor underestimating your merits. Only a few of earth's millions have sat on "the top of the world" and it has not always been a comfortable seat at that.

Since you and I must jog along life's common highway, begin by believing that at your age you can travel far. And since lately your record for covering distance has been poor adopt other methods. Select upright, loyal character as your main objective and you cannot fail to climb even beyond the top of the world. That is below the sun, but good character takes you above the sun. A conscientious man intent on the duty nearest to hand is God's noblest work. Resolve to be this, not because it gratifies vain ambition but because it is the one thing worth being.

Codes of conduct are plentiful, but strength to fulfill them is scarce. Christ gives both and what He gives is unsurpassable. He placed a cross on top of His world. What do you propose as your crowning achievement? Obedience to His laws creates spontaneous tendencies to live for others, to serve your fellows and to keep the general good steadily before you.

In various ways you and I and the rest of us are very much alike. But in certain particulars we are distinctively ourselves. Lift your peculiarities to the level of sacrificial helpfulness and enlist them in unselfish devotion. If you are thoughtful, ponder the world's needs and not its rewards. If you are hopeful, give it heartfelt cheer and not hopelessness. If you are choleric, rage against injustice and oppression and not those who strive to exterminate these evils.

At twenty-three the globe is at your feet. A new age lies ahead. Its momentous problems have to be faced. You can aid in solving them. So throw yourself into the struggle for the right as its own reward, and let the mean, the despicable and the greedy squabble about place and power.

PIERSON HEADS MILK CODE HERE

Assistant Administrator Opens Office In Postoffice.

J. T Pierson, assistant administrator of the milk licensing for the Lincoln sales area, began setting up shop in room 418 of the Federal building Monday preparatory to administering the provisions of the license. Pierson is assistant to A N. Heggen, Omaha, who is in charge of Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs and Sioux City.

Pierson explained that the milk of the distributors under the license, a part of the AAA, is divided into three classes, with definite prices set for each. It is the work of the administrators to see that the prices are upheld. For this purpose each dairy must submit a report every 15 days to the office of the administrator.

At intervals auditors will check these reports and in case of violations, necessary action will be taken, Pierson said. He said almost every milk distributor in the Lincoln area was under the license.

Class I milk, Pierson explained, is made up of all whole milk sold or distributed in the area. The price set for this class is 55 cents for each pound of butterfat under the terms of the license.

Class II milk is made up of all cream or milk used for ice cream in the area. The price set for this class varies under the license. It is set as follows: The average price per pound of 90 score butter in Chicago plus 20 per cent, plus three cents. For the period ending June 15, the price was .32077 per pound of butterfat.

Class III milk is all other milk sold and the price is set as follows: The average price per pound of 90 score butter in Chicago, plus or minus one-quarter cent for each one cent that such price is above or below 20 cents, plus four cents. The price under this rule, as of June 15, was .29289 cents per pound Pierson said.

Pierson, formerly employed in the state agricultural extension work, lives at 2020 Pepper avenue.

Mr. Watson, alone in the car, said he was crowded off the road. The car was only slightly damaged. He was treated at an Omaha hospital and was brought to his home Sunday morning by relatives. He expects to remain at his home for several days.

JOHN SCOTT INJURED.

John Scott, 19, 1225 South Sixth street, was slightly injured in an automobile accident near Twenty-seventh and A streets at 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Scott was riding with Miss Evelyn Reiter, 19, 1345 S street, when her car collided with an automobile driven by Joe Copperstone, 25, of Valparaiso. Miss Agnes Schmitt Finds Movie Stars Glamorous For Themselves

Disregarding the popular tendency to find movie stars glamorous for the sheen of their playday parts, Miss Agnes F. Schmitt, recently returned from a visit to the lots, finds them glamorous for themselves. More specifically, for the excellence of their grooming.

Not better than you or I, nor more beautiful than the beautiful everywhere, Miss Schmitt thinks. "Just everyday working people, more aware of their possibilities and their weaknesses than the average." Movie people must be perfectly groomed when they start for the set. There can be no four-inch play in the star's belt, nor a four-inch surplus over the hips. Physical perfection, poise and grooming taken with intelligence and training equals a movie star, she avows.

Studies Make-Up.

Such deductions came to Miss Schmitt as she worked during the early part of the month in Hollywood as a special representative of the Nebraska Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association Called to California to introduce child grooming, Miss Schmitt availed herself of the opportunity to study make-up under Harry L. Siegelman, artist for the Paramount studios.

During this training, she saw the parade of stars "getting beautified." Most interesting perhaps to Miss Schmitt was the application of a new greaseless make-up for screening. Dark generally, make-ups with this new product are even darker, a Hindu shade, worn by all to produce the colored effects we see on the screen.

Frances Drake, whose newest picture with Paramount is "Ladies Must Listen," was interviewed by Miss Schmitt and will wear in this show a hairdress designed by her. Miss Schmitt characterized Miss Drake as the natural type. Her heavy head of bronze-brown hair is real as are her long black eyelashes. For make-up, Miss Drake used blood-red tints in rouge and lipstick.

Poses for Short Shots.

Caught in this interviewing process, Miss Schmitt posed for a short with Miss Drake. Of other characters, particular interest was in the child actresses who modeled in her child-grooming demonstration. Among this group were Shirley Jean Ricard, now playing with Colleen Moore in "Scarlet Letter," and Gloria Ruth Gomaz, infant star of "Rich Man's Son."

Of the older group, Miss Schmitt's impression was that Mae West was thoroughly worthwhile, much smaller than one imagines, and the user of numerous gorgeous wigs. Gary Cooper was seen lounging on the beach and being everyone's pal.

At lunch time on the lot, vivacious Ginger Rogers was introduced, sitting in at Miss Schmitt's table. Ginger, happy, popular young star, knows most everyone. For that day she skipped through in blue slacks, sweater to match, and shoes trimmed with the shade.

Movie people guard themselves generally, but once you may speak with them, they are only another person at work, Fear of racketeers, promoters and the like cause much of the diffidence if there is any. Mae West comes to work guarded heavily following a recent robbery. At the Mexican beach home of Johnny K. Arthur, Miss Schmitt spent a pleasant visit, and heard another incident of stars using versatility to protect themselves from an over-curious public. While Johnny pulled weeds from the flower beds, two young girls stopped to ask an autograph. "Johnny isn't home this afternoon," Mr. Arthur replied. "I'm only the gardener." They left him to pull weeds.
